

Arran and Glenrothes: Mature, rich and smooth drams

Arran Single Malt Whisky

Set up only in 1995, the young and promising Arran Distillery is known for its creamy, delicate profile, sharing some of the characteristics of the Highlands and Lowlands, with a slight touch of salinity, thanks to the vicinity to the sea.

Often referred to as "Scotland in miniature", Arran island locates between the Ayrshire coast and the Kintyre peninsula. The Arran Distillery is the only working distillery on an island that was once home to many of the illicit stills on the west coast of Scotland.

Glenrothes Single Malt Whisky

With a long history going all the way back to 1879, Glenrothes distinguishes itself from the rest of classic Speyside distilleries with its vintage-dated bottlings and single cask releases. The rich, smooth, structured nature of the malts are enhanced by use of both American and Spanish oak barrels to give some of the world's finest examples of Scotch. An extended period of oak ageing after distillation produces a fine balance between a nose of fruit and spices and a mellow, honeyed palate.

Glenrothes Single Cask 1969 #11485

The cask was filled on 31st July 1969. The cask yielded 69 bottles at a natural strength of 43.8% alcohol by volume. This expression is unchillfiltered and, like all Glenrothes' bottlings, of completely natural colour.

Appearance: Bright and clear and coppery.

Nose: Powerful aroma of complexity including vanilla, coconut, toasted walnuts and herbal notes.

Palate: Lots of good older wood notes, lingers lovingly with toffee, popcorn and nougat.

Finish: Long melt in the mouth, honeycomb, superbly balanced for one so old

$49,500 per bottle

Glenrothes Single Malt 1978

FREE

1 bottle of 1978 100ml miniature (Value: $2,400)

The Glenrothes 1978 Vintage is the latest expression from the distillery and, with very limited availability, is almost certainly the very last Glenrothes from the 1970s. It comprises a small selection of casks, hand-picked by Malt Master John Ramsay, at the very peak of their maturity.

Appearance: Light burnished copper

Nose: Intense but approachable spicy plums, with floral top note

Palate: Rich, mature flavour, oak, vanilla and white chocolate

Finish: Very long, rich and sweet

$16,800 per set
