

Do we need white burgundy? - asked world's leading wine authority Jancis Robinson MW. The formidable Jancis Robinson has travelled to Kumeu River in New Zealand in September 2018. An evaluation of 48 Chardonnays from Kumeu River, including their 2017 production, has formed the basis of an incredibly positive review of Kumeu River's "amazing, and impressively consistently" Chardonnay. Read Jancis' full review in the paid member area of her Purple Pages. Kumeu River is not unfamiliar to Hong Kong wine connoisseur's scene. It's perhaps one of the "top choices" for the mischievous ones who'd like to choose a New World Chardonnay to "hoodwink" their Burgundy loving friends.

Kumeu River's third-generation operator and winemaker Michael Brajkovich, who is also New Zealand's first Master of Wine, is often seen as the key person driving the success of Kumeu River's Burgundian-inspired style. Kumeu River's wines strike an admirable balance between fruit purity, precision and restrained flinty qualities often seen in Burgundian counterparts. Kumeu River fans, stock up on their widely acclaimed 2017 vintage release.
